PRINCESS BATHING SUITS ARE POPULAR THIS SEASON

Plain and Plaid Materials Made in This Style Will Be Seen at All the Beaches.

Almost without exception the princess modes prevail in bathing suits, whether the material be serge, brilliantine or silk. Certainly they are most trim and shapely looking, and except to the exceedingly thin person will be found generally becoming.

There is, however, a model that will be very kind to the too thin figure. It is made in one piece by means of a folded belt. The waist above and the skirt below are tucked vertically for several inches, consequently, provides fullness at bust and over the hips where most needed. The folded belt and the tucking give an agreeable full effect. The top of the suit is gathered into a deep shaped band, cut in one with Jap leavers. This neck is not too low, another advantage to a thin person, for while the broad sailor collar is always becoming to a slight woman the front effect is not as charitable to the very thin neck.

One hears many jokes about the fat woman's bathing suit, but this type is not the only one that requires more than ordinary care in costuming. The directly opposite class may be just as unpleasant to the eye if not becomingly garbed.

Plain Colored Suits. While there are a number of suits in plaids and checks the majority are in plain colorings relieved by braid trimmings or fancy material, sometimes both. Effects more striking may be obtained in this way, making the dress of a solid color, trimmings and accessories in a bright shade.

As for instance, a black mohair with collar, cuffs, belt and cap of bright red satin foulded with white would be stunning. The stockings to be worn with it should be red and white polka dot, and the shoes black. The parasol should show a combination of black and color and the handbag of black silk drawn up with red ribbons and lined with the color.

When plaid is chosen for the suit, then the trimmings will be of plain color. This is a pretty, if not very striking, fashion. And among the happiest combinations of color and color are linen or plume, no matter what the colors may be in the suit. The Scotch plaids relieved with white, the latter trimmed with a few rows of braid, are very dainty looking, especially when worn with a white sunbonnet, or Normandy hood, as they are called in bathing parlance. A black silk tie and an all-black handbag will give the necessary dash to this toilet if such is desired.

Taffeta Suits Favorites.

The more expensive suits are of taffeta, peau de sole and a good heavy fould, showing decoration of braid, embroidery, etc.

The entire front of a 1908 Princess frock will often be entirely covered with a trimming, and $15 is only the average price for a suit of this description. Then there are all the accessories to match that go to make up this toilet, so that $50 may soon be spent on the outfit.

For $3, however, a very nice bathing suit in black or blue brilliantine, finished with a shaped or sailor collar daintily trimmed with braid or fancy material, may be purchased.

Another in sailor style, with white shield made of any of the alpacas can be secured for $4.

Few of the skirts are trimmed, this not being favorable to the short princess mode, but in the case of the wearer being very tall, bands in contrasting tones will be an improvement.

Most of the sleeves are in puff shape, with oversleeve effect. The "V" neck is preferred to the square cut this year.

The prettiest caps are those designed on the order of the auto cap, with visor in front and made with strings to tie under the chin. These are very coquettish and are in all colors to select from.

The Normandy hood is 50 cents and a smart little hat called the jockey is $1, in silk, plain colors.

The Parisian hood is the same price and in the same colorings and fabric. There is very little change in the styles of the rubber lined caps, those made with strings being the only innovation so far.

Dainty Peignoirs.

Indescribably lovely are the dainty peignoirs of the finest of dotted muslin and the finest of lace. In cut they are like the ordinary circular cape, made long enough to reach well over the knees when seated, so as to fully protect the gown, and tying in front with long ribbon ends. To heighten the sheer effect, vertical bands of lace are set in, radiating from the neck (where they are only half an inch apart) to the edge of the deep round collar and to the bottom of the cape. The entire peignoir is finished all round with a frill of lace—Vogue.

IN THE KITCHEN

Preserving Strawberries.

Select two lots of berries, large, perfect ones for preserving and smaller ones for the sirup. Put the latter in a colander and pour cold water over them to rinse well. Shake dry and put in a preserving kettle, allowing a half pound sugar to each pound of berries. Cover and let stand over night. The next morning drain off most of the juice from the berries and add to the juice one-quarter pound strained honey. Cook the sirup until reduced to one-third the original quantity. While the sirup is boiling scald the glass cans inside and out and fill with the large perfect berries that have been hulled. Fasten the lids on part way and set in dripping pans on wet towels on the back of the range to keep warm. When the sirup is boiled down one-third pour quickly over fruit, filling the jars to the very brim, unless you wish to pour in a teaspoonful olive oil, and seal air tight. If you do not care to use the honey according to the real Wiesbaden method, take a half pound sugar in its place, thus making the preserve pound for pound. Keep in a cool, dark place.

Lady Baltimore Cake.

Beat to a cream on cupful butter, adding gradually two cupfuls sugar. When creamy add one cupful sweet milk, then three and a half cupfuls flour, sifted three times over, with two level teaspoonfuls baking powder. Flavor with rose water, then fold in the whites of six eggs, beaten to a stiff froth. Do not stir, but fold with a rotary motion, so as not to break the air bubbles in the eggs. Bake in three-layer cake pans in a medium hot oven. For the filling, dissolve three cupfuls granulated sugar in one cupful boiling water, cook until it spins a thread, then pour over the stiffly whipped whites of three eggs, beating continuously. Add to this icing one cupful chopped nut meats, walnuts or pecans, one cup seeded and chopped raisins and five figs cut in thin strips. Put between the layers and on the top and sides of the cake.

Sponge Cake.

Beat six fresh eggs and a cup of sugar together with a wire beater, not the patent beater. Whip in long strokes until the mixture is perfectly creamy, light and white. This takes time. Add a teaspoonful of vanilla or lemon and two tablespoonfuls of cold water and beat again. Lastly, fold in—do not beat—one cup of sifted flour. Bake in a rather slow oven.

Apple Layer Cake.

Beat the white of one egg until light, but not stiff, then add, little by little and alternately, one cup granulated sugar and one tart apple, peeled and grated as it is added. Continue the beating in long, even strokes for twenty minutes until you have a white, feathery mass that will hold its own. Spread between the layers of a sponge cake.

GOWN OF CHECKED COTTON VOILE.

The frock illustrated was, in the original, in white cotton voile checked across with lines of green. The yoke and collar were of tucked muslin and valenciennes lace, and the undersleeves were also of muslin and lace. Tiny shirred bands of the voile outlined the yoke, and between these bands a wide band of white file insertion was introduced. From the lowest band outlining the yoke a fringe of small white balls was used. The skirt was finished about the bottom by two wide bias bands.

PLAN TO CELEBRATE

LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS ARRANGE FOR FOURTH OF JULY.

Advance arrangements for the celebration of the glorious Fourth of July are being made by several of the patriotic organizations of the District. At a recent meeting of Dolly Madison Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, the decision was reached that the members are opposed to any boisterous demonstration July 4. Accidents and fatalities in recent years due to the careless handling of explosives were given as the basis for the elimination of the boisterous features.

Mrs. D. M. Chap, secretary of the chapter, said: "When one thinks of the hundreds of children who were killed by the explosion of fireworks July 4 last, and the hundreds of others seriously injured, it seems incredible that the nation should continue this deadly work, and call it a display of patriotic feeling."

It is not time for all of us to take the matter seriously, and find some way of teaching patriotism to the rising generation without sacrificing to many precious lives?"

Chairman William A. Hickey of the committee of three of the Army and Navy Union, garrisons of this city, in charge of the Santiago celebration, July 3 and 4, announces the following committee members:
